THE SOUTHWEST EXPERIENCES AN EARTHQUAKE SHOCK.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION.]

SULPHUROUS AND VIOLENT. El Paso Visited by a Loud-smelling Earthquake.

EL Paso (Tex.), May 3d.—A shock of earthquake was plainly felt here at 3:08 o'clock this afternoon, which lasted about two minutes. It was perceptible in every portion of the city, and so alarmed our citizens of all classes that only invalids and the helpless were left within doors For probably two minutes preceding the shock many persons recognized a distinct and offensive smell of sulphur, and when the shock came the earth trembled, and many articles hanging on walls oscillated to and fro, and some fell to the floor. Plastering fell from the front and ceiling of many dwellings and business houses, and in the Court-house evidences of the shock were quite plain. Clocks were stopped, buildings were cracked, horses came to a standstill in the streets, and family and friendly groups formed more rapidly than we have ever known in El

The first impression was a vertical oscillation. This lasted only a few seconds. There was an awful minute's calm, followed by a very pronounced horizontal wave. No serious damage has resulted in this neighborhood.

NEW MEXICO SHAKEN UP ALSO. ALBUQUERQUE, May 3d .- At 3:13 this afternoon the entire community was startled by two distinct, but almost continstartled by two distinct, but almost continuous, vibrations of the earth, the direction of which was from east to west, and its continuation ten seconds. Clocks in all parts of the city were stopped, chandeliers vibrated, and a plate-glass window in the First National Bank building was cracked. Men and women rushed into the streets, and horses were frightened. Men up. and horses were frightened. Men un-hitched their teams and hurriedly led them away, looking upward at the buildings as if they expected they were about to topple upon them. Many persons complained of a feeling akin to sea sickness.

In the old town people were terror-stricken, and many of the natives teared a new eruption from an extinct crater near here. Court was in session in the new Court-house, occupied for the first time yesterday. Those in the Court-room thought the structure about to fall, and a stampede was made for the doors. The Judge hurriedly adjourned Court, and the officials joined in the rush. The shock appears to have been general throughout the southwest. The reports indicate that it was more severe at El Paso than here.

At San Marcial two distinct shocks were felt, and alarm was general. At Lake valley, 200 miles south, two shocks were distinguishable. The vibrations were east to west and continuing eight seconds, and time reported at 3:12. THE SHOCK IN ARIZONA. HŒNIX (A. T.), May 3d.—The first distinct earthquake shock ever known in Arizona was experienced here at 2:40 p. m. to-day. The vibrations were north and south and of several seconds' duration.

A MOUNTAIN PEAK KNOCKED DOWN. Tucson, May 3d .- There was a lively earthquake, commencing at 2:15 this afternoon, and lasting about 27 minutes. The oscillations were from north to south. Buildings were swayed considerably in some instances cracking them. Windows and doors rattled loudly, and people left their houses for safety. The shock evidently broke down a portion of the Santa Catalina Sold everywhere. Prices—50c., $1, $1 75.

As this was the first earthquake ever experienced in Tucson, the people were greatly excited. The public school building rocked to and fro like a cradle, and me of the plastering fell, creating utmost consternation among the scholars. The school was at once dismissed for fear of a repetition of the shock. Many buildings were seriously damaged.

To Mr. R. M. Siebert—Dear Sir: I was real glad to hear that you had found a home, with a good prospect for the future. The reports in the capitalistic papers about our colony are all false, like everything else they publish on the Labor question. The accompanying copies of the Credit Foncier will give you the truth about the colony. The letters that I have received from personal friends of mine are corroborated with the statements in our papers. I have triedhard to have the capitalistic papers publish the truth, but they will not do it. I think it real good if you could start a Socialistic colony where you are, with those people who have not the means to go to our large colonies; but I think that to bring about a reform by colonization we should try our best to help those large-colonies, so that we can show to the public what Socialism can do. Then, in concentrating our force we will arrive at better and quicker-results. For my part, I do not think that, with the few colonies started, we will make an end of our capitalistic robbing system. Capital is doing that itself. It is digging its own grave, and within a short time we will bury it. Nevertheless, it is the duty of every one of us to prepare for this event. A MISCARRIAGE OF JUSTICE.

High states of civilization are marked by the sacred estimation placed upon human life. When we wish to measure our progress in the way of acquiring civilizing influences and civilized conceptions, we may appeal with safety to this standard.

Recently an estimable and virtuous lady living in Woodin valley, was murdered foully and brutally by a farm hand named Peter Olsen. Still more recently a Chinese cook, in Tehama county, murdered the wife of a farmer, and in both instances the murderers escaped. Pursuit, in both cases was at once instituted, and has been prosecuted with greater or less vigor up to the man they killed, and whose body they present time, In the case of the Chinamen, a body of men in pursuit of the murderer encountered a Chinaman, who, suspecting that the pursuers had some animosity against his race, and terrified at the approach of numbers of armed men, fled. His pursuers immediately fired upon him, killing him instantly. The process of reasoning which must have guided these men, under anything like critical examination, is very peculiar. They were looking for Hong Di, a Chinaman. Hong Di was supposed to be in hiding somewhere in the vicinity. Since Hong was a Chinaman, and since the man before them was a Chinaman, they had two points of identity. Their process of reasoning was after the manner of our ancient friends, the Sophists. Hong Di was a Chinaman ; this man was a Chinaman; therefore this man was Hong Di. A second point of identification was: Hong is captured, and if he has any regard what-Di was fleeing; this Chinaman was flee- ever for his good name he will give him-Di. There might have been a lurking doubt in the minds of the pursuers of Hong Di as to the identity of the man before them. In a state of civilization, wherein human life is held as the most sacred of all things, the benefit of that doubt would have been given to the fleeing Chinaman. That he was denied the bene fit of this doubt is an evidence that his pursuers preferred to take his life by mis take than to have been mistaken themselves in the identity of the man before them. In short, they killed the Chinaman upon the theory that he might possi bly be Hong Di, and must have reasoned that it was better to kill an innocent Chinaman than to let Hong Di escape Following this theory, we see no reason why they did not kill all the Chinamen in the vicinity, after the manner of Herod, who ordered his detectives to murder all the children under two years of age on the coast, that the one life he sought might be

A still more recent incident, however, will be more shocking to the nervous sensibilities of sensitive people, because the man killed was not a Chinaman. He might have been a Chinaman. It was his merit, however, that he was not. The Eastern States just now are flooded with immigration literature, and perhaps in response to a pamphlet issued by some immigration society this stranger sought the wilds of California, and located a piece of Government land high up or the flanks of the Sierras. He carved on one of the trees standing near the threshold of his cabin the words, "Homestead of Michael Siebert," and on another "A Haven of Rest;" and in this way proclaimed his name, the character of his claim and the state of his mental satisfaction. He found the soil rich, the climate inviting, and immediately proceeded to mind his own business. He had neighbors who, observing that he minded his own business strictly, that he did not rush around the neighborhood to tell everybody his name, his race or his country, regarded him with suspicion. The fact that he had come into the county a stranger, and had not attempted to run the politics of the county, was most conclusive evidence that he was the murderer of somebody, to say the least. His retiring disposition, his reticence, in fact the phenomenal tendency manifested by him to mind his own business, was a strong point against his innocence. Some gentlemen living in the neighborhood by the name of Carver, hearing of the great reward which had been offered for the capture of the murderer Pete Olsen, put their neighbor under surveillance. He visited their house and was offered the hospitalities of their roof. not because his entertainers were hospitable, not because they had the Arab's high sense of the demands of hospitality, but for the purpose of observing him, and ascertaining whether there was a bald spot on the back of his head. The fatal bald spot was discovered. The process of reasoning so ingeniously employed in the case of the Chinaman was brought into requisition here. Pete Olsen had a bald spot on his head. This man had a bald spot. Therefore this man was Pete Olsen. They approached his humble dwelling, and one of them engaged him in conversation while two others slipped on him through the woods with shotguns. The picture presented by this group of against which every civilized conception people just before the fatal event is inter-

Here stands a newcomer, his breast pocket full of immigration literature, ax in hand, clearing a a spot to plant a garden. Here are two men crouching in the woods, slipping up by stealthy steps, and another armed with a revolver, under the guise of a neighborly visit, stands before him draws a revolver and says: "I arrest you for murder."

Under this feature of the law probably 2,000 saloons have been closed. The law is very simple in its character. It embodies the two principles of taxation and regulation, the chief feature being taxation and mu-nicipal local option. While many towns have under it adopted prohibition, many others have voted it down. From this letter ve make the following extract : 'Upper California has recently been asserting her claims to patronage, and when the same amount of capital has been ex-pended that has wreathed the southern country in beauty, victory will perch upon her banners, for she has greater water re-sources and wooded hills, and it has been proved that oranges and all semi-tropical fruits can be raised with as great success as at Riverside or Pasadena. But if one would lay up a goodly inheritance, let him turn his attention to olive-raising. Trees bear in five years, each year producing larger crops until they reach maturity. The justly-celebrated soda and mineral springs are within her borders, and, indeed, there is no spot that does not afford a delight. The people are extremely hospitable and cordial, gladly welcoming the Easterner, with his enterprise, energy and capital."

A Lucky Man.

Dr. J. W. Healy, formerly a resident of Woodland, died in San Diego April 27th, after a lingering and painful illness.

Sporting men were present from all portions of the State, and several games of chance, including dice tables and wheels of fortune, were in full blast. The poolsellers did but a light business, as the races were not of a speculative class, the winners being big favorites.

The first race was a trot for the 2:34 class, with Pasha, Len Hayden, Emma G., Orphan Girl and Willie S. started in the order named. Pools sold: Emma G., $20; Orphan Girl, $15; field, $5; and those figures did not materially change at any time during the race. Miss Jennie Winston was in splendid voice and was repeatedly encored. Manfred sang with great vivacity and clearness, and received complimentary and enthusiastic recalls. Both ladies were favored with handsome floral tributes. Mr. De Lange, the inimitable comedian, was encored in his topical songs to the extremest limit of good nature. His "hits" at the interstate com-merce law and the recent amateur dramatic performance were capital, and convulsed the audience with laughter. There has been no lyric comedian in late days the equal of this one for readiness, wit and vivacity. Mr. Clark, second comedian, was very successful as Duke Cyprian, and an admirable foil to De Lange. Mr. Pyke had a light and pleasing role, and sang with his accustomed good taste. Very much of the success of the opera depended upon Miss Norman, and she proved fully equal to the task. It was, as a whole, well given, handsomely costumed and supported by good orchestration. Miss Reynolds and No. 6, U. A. O. The results of the investigation into the accounts of the Water Works funds, by the Republican City Administration, and the change about to be made in the Clerk of that department, is an instance of this fact. In making another appointment for Clerk of the Water Works, which will soon be done, the Board of Trustees should be extremely cautious that the selection is wisely made, and not as a recognition or payment for extremely cautious that the selection is wisely made, and not as a recognition or payment for so-called party services. If a man is selected because of the confidence the public will repose in him, the exposing of the official crookedness and purging the service of it, will be creditable to our c.ty administration; but if the position be given to some one of the political place-hunters, who will demand it by reason of party services claimed to have been rendered, it will prove a sten'h in the public nostrils. May we not hope, however, that our officials who have ferreted out and stopped the official dereliction will do themselves and the public the further honor and service so putting some person who is not a political machine, but a "number one" man, in the place? Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever-A New Treatment.

[From the Mail (Can.), Dec. 15th.] Catarrh is a muco-purulent discharge caused by the presence and development of a vegetable parasite in the internal lining membrane of the nose. This parasite is only developed under favorable circumstances and these are: Morbid state of the blood, as the blighted corpuscle of tubercle, the germ poison of mercury, toxomea from the retention of the effete matter of the skin, suppressed perspiration, badly ventilated sleeping apartments and other poisons that are germinated in the blood. Many attempts have been made to cure this distressing disease by the use of inhalents, medicated vapors and other ingeniou devices, but none of these treatments can do a particle of good until the parasites

WHEAT—Trading by sample just now is almost out of the question, as offerings are too slim to admit of any great volume of business. Prominent exporters have no vessels to load, and therefore are not in the market as buyers. Under such circumstances, it is evident that activity is not possible. In the absence of any shipping business we quote No. 1 grades nominal at $1 75\pi ct. For lots adapted for the better class of milling wants, the range in price is inal at $1.75 $ ctl. For lots adapted for the better class of milling wants, the range in price is $1.80@1 $2½$ ctl. In the speculative market times are quite brisk, and daily transactions foot up a tolerably heavy aggregate. Seller contracts for May are now deliverable, and it is said that, on notice being given this morning, buyers expressed a willingness to accept at once instead of waiting the usual number of days, if it were any accommodation to sellers. This circumstance was generally considered an indication that the situation was under good control, and no immediate weakening in rates was anticipated.

On Monday a boy named John Nelson found the body of a man on the mudflats at the Potrero, near the Arctic oilworks. The corpse was clad in red fiannel drawers and a check woolen shirt, while on a barge near by was the remainder of his clothing. The body has not been identified. J. L. That Tired Feeling

The warm weather has a debilitating effect, especially upon those who are within doors most of the time. The peculiar, yet common, complaint known as "that tired feeling," is the result. This feeling can be entirely overcome by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives new life and strength to all the functions of the body. "I could not sleep; had no appetite. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and soon began to sleep soundly; could get up without that tired and languid feeling; and my appetite improved." R. A. SANFORD, Kent, Ohio.

Strengthen the System Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the combination of remedial agents; 2d, the proportion; 3d, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unusual strength, effecting cures hitherto unknown. Send for book containing additional evidence. "Hood's Sarsaparilla tones up my system, rifles my blood, sharpens my appetite, and ems to make me over." J. P. Thompson, egister of Deeds, Lowell, Mass.
